

12. Managing Others

The first days of being a new manager can be a challenge. This Skillpod will give your new managers the necessary tools to confidently deal with this time.

Being Authentic

Many people believe that they must create a 'management version' of themselves to succeed in the boardroom. This approach, while common, does not optimise their energy or their contribution.

Step Into My Office

One of the key management skills is being able to communicate constructively with their staff. This Skillpod offers guidance as to what are the best approaches and what practices should be avoided at all costs.

Contact lene@theglassceilingproject.com to help your staff master this skillset.

"Lene made a true and significant difference to my approach to the next steps of my career. She is intuitive, assertive and a true inspirational leader."

Gemma Arregui
Head of Operations, G-Kaizen

THE GLASS
CEILING
PROJECT